

Livingston County SWCD Welcomes

Kelbie Fries

Kelbie Fries was recently hired as the new Information/Education Specialist. She will be administering the Partners and Education Program and traveling to local schools to present programs on soil and water conservation.

Kelbie will also be responsible for coordinating organizing district field days, tours, pasture walks, annual meeting and other community events

Kelbie graduated from Northwest Missouri State University with a Bachelor of Science in Agriculture Science.

Poster Contest Presentations Begin!

This year's theme is “Conservation Habits = Healthy Habitats”

The Livingston County Soil and Water Conservation will again be going around and presenting the theme for this years poster contest “Conservation Habits = Healthy Habitats”. The contest will be launched October 26, 2009 and will continue through November 20, 2009. The contest is open to all 4th -6th grade students in Livingston County and is also open to any 4th -6th grade student that is home schooled in the county. You can contact the Livingston County SWCD to get supplies and information.

We are also continuing from last years expansion of including 7th -12th grade students who would like to participate in a county wide contest to select overall winners. Information can be obtained from the school's art instructors or the Livingston County SWCD office.

For information on soil and water conservation, educational opportunities, or the county poster contest, please contact Kelbie Fries, Information Educational Specialists, at 660-646-5687 ext. 3.
